

SEEING RAPE

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6, 2022

COUNSELOR

Keshia Webb is a 2nd year doctoral student in the counseling psychology program at Fordham University. She received her bachelor's degree from Clark Atlanta University and her master's degree from Teachers College, Columbia University. Her academic interests include working with ethnically and racially diverse youth and families' focusing on social justice, identity development, race and culture. Keshia is currently working as a psychology extern with John Jay's Counseling and Wellness Center. At John Jay, she provides individual counseling to students. Outside of school, Keshia enjoys traveling, going to the beach, and spending time with her family, fiancé and friends.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Alvaro Pinzon is the director of an accountability program for people who want to stop causing harm to their partners called Respect & Responsibility. He seeks to bring this concept into the conversation as people calling for accountability has been prominent in local and national discussion recently.

Sam Asencio (He/They/Xe) is a genderfluid junior in the CUNY BA pursuing Queer Education and Social Advocacy and Innovation at xyr home college of John Jay. Xe is a current McNair scholar, CUNY Peer Leader, and HASTACS Scholar. Xyrs projects include the creation of Q'connections, a paid stipend queer peer mentorship program, and spearheading the creation of John Jay's new LGBTQ+ center. Sam's current research interest is in LGBTQ+ pedagogy, education, program development, and assessment, and xe is currently working xyr current research titled: From the Ones Doing the Work: Exploring the LGBTQ+ Service Landscape in Urban Higher Education under Dr. Emily McSpadden. Sam's work can be found on the CUNY Peer Leaders website, HASTACS digital Friday, Spotify, and in various other forms of media publication.

SeeingRape.com
524 West 59th Street
New York, NY 10019

SEEING RAPE

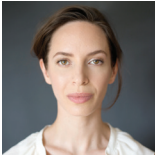

THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 2022

COUNSELOR

Cory Head , Ph.D. is the Associate Director of the Counseling Services Center at John Jay College and a licensed clinical psychologist. She has long been passionate about psychology and advocating for mental health awareness and treatment. She earned her Ph.D. in Psychology at Long Island University – Brooklyn. Prior to working at John Jay, she worked in several hospitals in the Bronx, treating underserved, severely mentally ill populations. She received extensive training in trauma-informed care. At John Jay, she manages the clinical operations of the center, provides clinical supervision, and treats students in crisis. To ask about our services, email chead@jjay.cuny.edu.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Jocelyn Kuritsky is an actor, creator, producer, and designer. She is a three-time Princess Grace Award nominated performer, and a founder and the actor-in-residence of the Drama Desk Award nominated & Lucille Lortel Award winning immersive theater company, Woodshed Collective. Jocelyn is the creator of The Muse Project, dedicated to centering and spotlighting women stage actors (during the Covid-19 pandemic she produced the first season of A Simple Herstory with Muse - a scripted podcast series about the women who have run for President of the United States); and she is also the creator of Staging Film, an experimental cross-medium initiative. She designs websites for a wide range of clients, from award-winning documentary filmmakers to notable children's book writers. www.jocelynkuritsky.com

Saloni Sethi is Deputy Executive Director at the Office of Crime Victim Supports (OCVS), an office within New York City Mayor's Office of Criminal Justice (MOCJ). They work to strengthen the safety net for survivors of violence and ensure New York residents impacted by crime have the resources they need to heal. Saloni has over a decade of experience in anti-violence and anti-poverty work, and is dedicated to addressing intersecting issues of power, privilege, and oppression through organizational leadership, innovative program development, policy advocacy, direct services, training, and education. Prior to MOCJ, they led the work of the Policy team at the NYC Mayor's Office to End Domestic and Gender-Based Violence (ENDGBV). Saloni is a social worker by training, and an advocate and educator by nature, with a Master's in Social Work from New York University, and Bachelor's degrees in Economics and Mathematics from the University of Chicago.

SeeingRape.com
524 West 59th Street
New York, NY 10019

SEEING RAPE

FRIDAY, APRIL 8, 2022

COUNSELOR

Alexander Legg is a doctoral student in clinical psychology at John Jay. He is a current student extern at the counseling center, and researcher in the Domestic Violence and Sex Trafficking Lab. Alexander earned his bachelor's in Gender Studies from CUNY City College and master's in clinical psychology from the American University of Beirut.

SPECIAL GUEST

Vivian Lee (she/her) is an Emmy-winning TV journalist, public speaker, moderator and director/producer in New York, most recently at NY1 as anchor and reporter between 2008 and 2020. In her last year at NY1, her reporting and anchoring covered the ravages of the novel coronavirus pandemic; the social reckoning demanded by Black Lives Matter protests; and Joe Biden's election win declared by the Associated Press in November 2020. That announcement led to hours of her live and uninterrupted broadcasting as she anchored team coverage of numerous celebrations spontaneously erupting in many corners of NYC.

As an anchor and reporter, Vivian covered numerous stories of national and international importance, including the election campaign and win of Donald Trump, Hurricane Sandy's devastating effects on the city's coastal communities, and Pope Francis' stunning election at Vatican City. Vivian was the first reporter from New York City to break news of the cardinals' decision, while reporting live in St. Peter's Square.

Vivian also hosted Spotlight New York, which showcased the creative landscape of the five boroughs in the arts and cultural institutions. Her work was recognized in 2020 with an Emmy Award for her retrospective piece on the history of Manhattan's famed Joe's Pub.

Vivian's career in New York started at WNBC in 2002, where she was a general assignment reporter covering city hall, education, transit, weather and health. Before that she was CityTV Toronto's parliamentary correspondent and federal affairs reporter in Ottawa. She was also a fill-in anchor on CityTV's 24/7 sister channel, CP24.

She began reporting while completing her journalism degree at Carleton University in Ottawa, with stints at CJOH-TV Ottawa, ATV-ASN News Halifax, and A Channel Calgary, where she co-anchored the award-winning weeknight evening news show "A Channel News@Night."

Vivian has received numerous awards recognizing her industry and community contributions, including the New York Women's Foundation's 2021 "Pillars of Courage" award, shared with four of her former NY1 colleagues. She also received KAFSC's 2019 Lifetime Engagement Award. A featured speaker on numerous panels and workshops discussing gender discrimination and Asian American identity, Vivian currently serves as co-chair of KoreanAmericanStory.org and lives in New York with her husband and two daughters.

SeeingRape.com
524 West 59th Street
New York, NY 10019

